Vaccine Passports

Travelers may need to use vaccine passports to enter certain countries or to be exempt from testing and quarantine requirements in a post-pandemic world. Currently, the only way to confirm vaccine status in the United States is a card from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Getting Covid-19 test results is a little easier as many facilities put them online, but we're not yet close to a standardized system used worldwide.

It's important to acknowledge that “vaccine passport” is a pretty broad term, and that every app or platform won't offer the same features. Many of these platforms are still in development. You may not always be able to choose the same platform every time. To simply keep track of your vaccine or test status, you may want to create a COVID-19 folder on your home screen or download an app such as Clear for personal use.

Clear Health Pass

Clear's Health Pass feature is already being used to verify negative tests required at some sports arenas and to approve tourists for quarantine-free travel to Hawaii.

Delta and United flyers traveling nonstop from Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) to Honolulu (HNL) can securely link their test results and verify their identity, making it easy for Hawaii to identify travelers approved to avoid the state's otherwise mandatory 10 day quarantine.

After a quick enrollment, users can securely link their lab results, and soon vaccination results, through Clear's large nationwide network of healthcare facilities, pharmacies, labs and at-home testing options.

Until further notice, plans for the "Lecture Series" and "Reunion Gatherings" on Oahu have been postpone until conditions improve and a location is secured. Please feel free to contact us for any of your concerns.

Till the next update....Keep safe, healthy and get vaccinated.
